Colin Hill changed open water swimming in Great Britain. He inspired a “mass participation” open water swim which became the Great Swim Series. The tens of thousands competitive 1-mile swim spawned a generation of new marathon swimmers. This provided a massive publicity boost for the sport. Colin then led as the Marathon Swimming Technical Operations Manager for the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games at the 2012 London Olympic Games. The Olympic 10K Marathon Swim, in the Serpentine, in the middle of a London Park, showcased the sport of open water marathon swimming to a new generation. After his Olympic success, Hill set up the Big Chill Swim in Windermere in the Lake District of England. This led to the Chillswim Coniston – 5.25 miles End to End and a restart of the historic Windermere Cross Lake Swim. He has a position as Open Water Swimming consultant for both FINA and London Marathon to develop mass participation events. Colin helped make spending a weekend going open water swimming into a trendy activity – even becoming “cool”.

Colin is also an accomplished marathon swimmer with a 10 hours and 30 minutes English Channel swim and a two-way crossing of Lake Windermere.
