

Hugh Tucker, Honor Coach, South Africa, 2018

Personal Website (None known)

Hugh Tucker has been a leading contributor for open water swimming in South Africa since the early 1970s. He has coached, piloted/crewed and observed over 350 swims. South African marathon swimming has its heart in Cape Town and the cold waters of Robben Island. More than 50 South Africans soloed the English Channel with a very high success rate. Hugh had a positive impact (directly or indirectly) on just about all who soloed after 1970.

He has not taken pay for his activities and even paid his own expenses for the swimmers he coached during English Channel marathons. His reward was being part of the swim experience and helping to improve the chances of success. Hugh is a fabulous example of a lifetime of volunteering. Hugh contributed to the following IMSHOF Honoree swims: Lynne Cox Cape Point during which divers shot a large shark below her, Kevin Murphy Robben Island, Lewis Pugh 100 km around the Cape, Ned Denison False Bay and Christof Wandratch record setting Robben Island.

Hugh is also an accomplished and determined marathon swimmer. He first attempted the English Channel in 1973, again in 2003 before completing in 2004 in 13 hours and 37 minutes.

Expanded Biography \(Openwaterpedia\)

Long Swims Database \(Marathon Swimmers Federation\)